GOP Drafters Try to Please Goldwater

By JACK BELL

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Drafters labored today over a platform likely to prove acceptable to Sen. Barry Goldwater, who next week will become the GOP presidential nominee unless there is an unforeseen party upheaval.

Supporters of Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton have fought a spirited but apparently futile battle to undercut the mountainous delegate strength the Arizona senator's strategists believe will give him the nomination on the first ballot.

In private conversations, Goldwater is said to have estimated that he has a rock-bottom 80 votes over the 655 needed for the nomination. He still wants an additional 20 as a "safety pad" for the last-minute assaults expected against his stronghold.

The embattled Scranton forces mounted a two-pronged attack. The Pennsylvania governor told a news conference Friday there was an unmanageable flood of messages. He said this outpouring "makes it very clear" that rank-and-file Republicans don't want Goldwater.

He contended this would exert influence on delegates to desert the Arizona senator. But there was no tangible evidence this

Angry Crowd Ruins Theater in Alabama

The Racial Scene

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Police used tear gas and fire hoses Thursday night to quell a disturbance in Tuscaloosa, Ala., when an angry crowd of white persons thought movie star Jack Palance was joining in an integration attempt.

Officers, who estimated the crowd at between 600 and 1,000, arrested one man as bricks and other missiles were thrown at a theater where Palance, his wife and four children had entered. The theater was integrated this past week for the first time in compliance with the new Civil Rights Act.

Richard E. Young, manager of the theater, said here were no Negroes present at the time. He also quoted Palance as saying he was there only to see the picture and not to take part in any civil rights movement.

Young said the theater's marquee, cashier's booth and other facilities were heavily damaged by the crowd before officers used tear gas and the fire hose to bring it under control.

It was reported in Washington that J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, is seriously considering a trip to Philadelphia, Miss., where FBI agents are asking par in he search for three missing civil rights workers.

Hoover has made no final decision on the trip, but has been keeping in close touch from Washington with the search for Andrew Goodman, 20; James Chaney, 21 and Michael Schwerner, 24.

Elsewhere, Negroes continued to assault segregation barriers under the new Civil Rights Act. A restaurant owner at Princess Anne, Md., wielding a tack hammer, chased a Negro and a white newsman during an integration attempt. Three white men and three Negroes entered the restaurant owned by Herman Muir.

After Muir had chased the Negro and white newsman, his daughter ordered the others out of the restaurant.

In Atlanta, Ga., three Negroes went to court in the first suit to test compliance under the week-old rights law. Lester Maddox, who twice had turned Negroes away from his restaurant, was ordered to show cause a July 17 hearing why he should not be issued.

The suit was filed by the three Negroes chased from the restaurant last Friday by Maddox, waving a pistol, and a crowd of white persons brandishing axes.

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Tourists are leaving poignant messages near the scene of President John F. Kennedy's assassination.

They scrawl the messages on sheets of notebook paper, and pin them to wreaths which rest against an ornamental wall in a grassy park at Main and Houston.

An Ohio housewife wrote: "We came to see because we loved you as our President."

And an Oklahoma City family expressed its admiration for President Kennedy with these words: "Thank you for your life of service and unselfish love for all of us."

It's Less But Budget Still a Big Deficit

By ADREN COOPER

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson is expected to announce in a few days that the budget deficit for the recently completed bookkeeping year will be significantly lower than anticipated, it was learned today.

Although the figures for the year which ended June 30 won't be available for about another week, evidence is mounting that the deficit will be less than the $8.8 billion forecast a few weeks ago.

The administration announced in May that it had shaved its estimated expenditures by $100 million and it placed the figure at $98.3 billion.

Now, there seems little doubt that expenditures will be less than $98 billion—perhaps considerably below that figure.

On the other side of the ledger, the government has been collecting more revenue than expected because of the consistently high level of performance by the economy.

Johnson said at a news conference Friday there would be

Neutralize Viet Nam, Johnson Told

By SPENCER DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some 5,000 university professors called on President Johnson today—and both the Republican and Democratic parties—to work for a neutralized North and South Viet Nam.

In a statement circulated by the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy, they declared that neutralizing both parts of the divided country would end its terror and suffering as well as the continuing loss of American and Vietnamese lives.

"It would be preferable to deeper involvement or irresponsible pullout," the educators said in an appeal to the President and to the platform committees of the two parties.

There was no immediate response at the State or Defense Departments.

The statement said: "We appeal to you, Mr. President, not to enlarge the scope of the war, but instead to work for a neutralized North and South Viet Nam, as a separate, federated or reunified state, protected by international guarantees and peace-keeping forces against all outside interference."

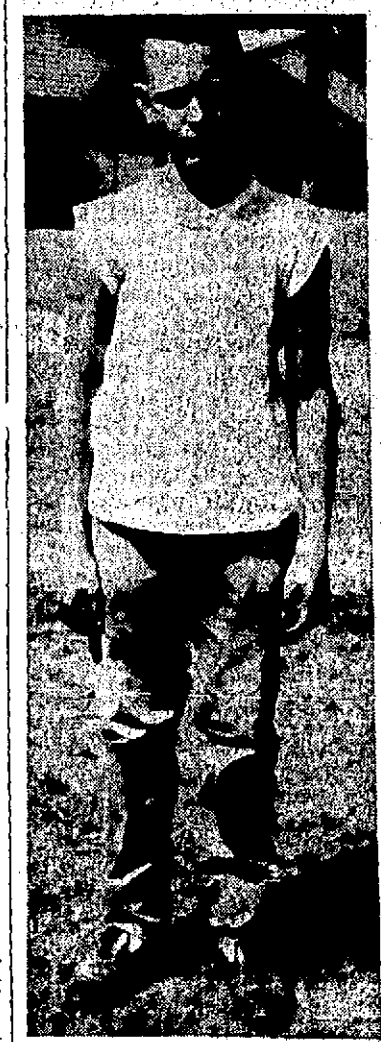

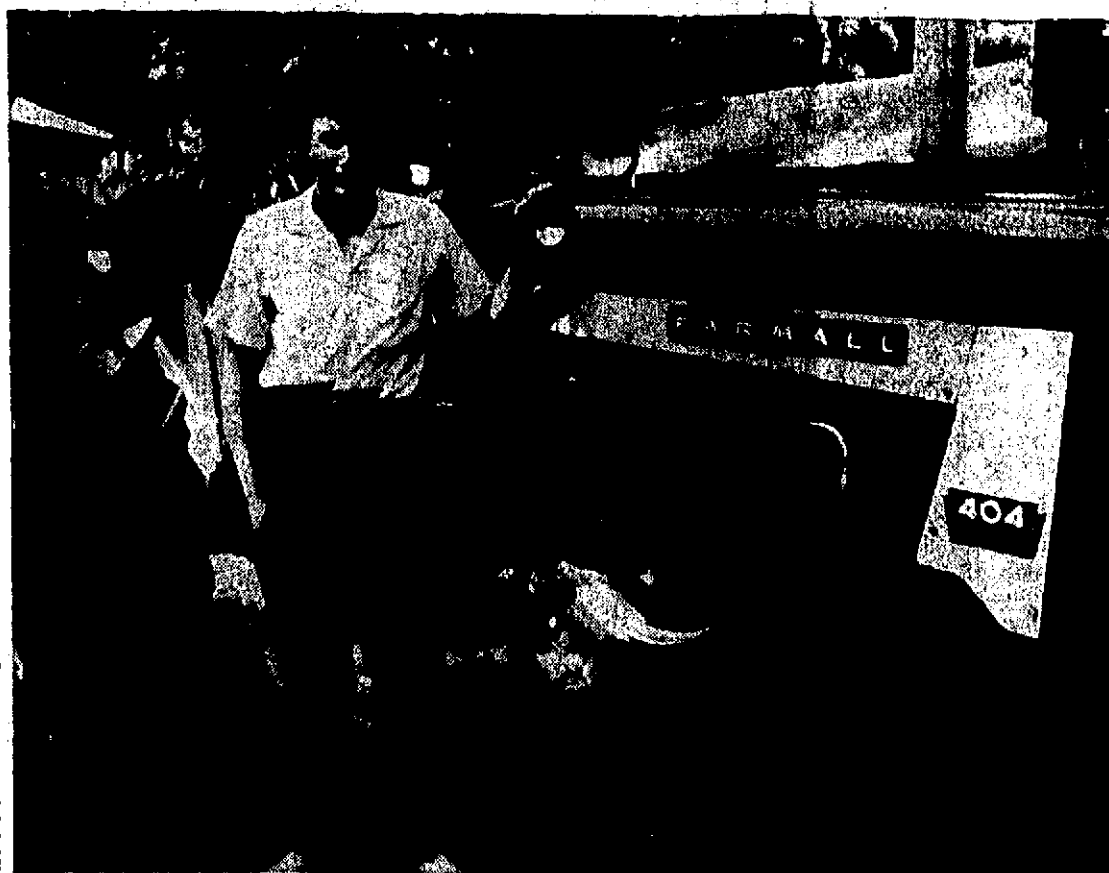

The proposal differed from other calls for neutralization, particularly that by Cambodia, in that it specifically included Communist North Viet Nam.

Thursday, the State Department rebuffed a suggestion by U.N. Secretary-General U Thant that a 14-nation Geneva conference be reconvened in an effort to settle the war in South Viet Nam, with U.N. peace-keeping forces to supervise the implementation of any peace plan developed by the conference.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee June 23 that the U.S. effort in South Viet Nam "carries the risk of escalating to military actions outside the border of South Viet Nam."

In his testimony, released Thursday by the committee, McNamara said the U.S. objective is clear—to maintain the independence of South Viet Nam. This, he said, "may require some military action outside the borders" in the future.

Wants Boost in Marine Strength

WASHINGTON (AP)—The commandant of the Marine Corps indicated strongly today he will ask for a boost in the corps' present 190,000-man strength.

Gen. Wallace Greene, Jr., told The Associated Press in an interview that new planes and weapons coming into the corps require more people to maintain and operate them.

It has been four fiscal years since the Marine Corps was granted more men. The Kennedy administration allowed it to go up by 15,000 men.

That increase was used to bring Marine ground and air units up to strength and to add some helicopter and aviation elements.

Greene said the new F4B Phantom jet fighter bomber requires a two-man crew, rather than the single crewman of earlier planes used by the corps.

"They are just starting deliveries of the F4B to the Marine Corps," the commandant said. "By fiscal 1966, we're going to have a real problem finding the people."

Fiscal 1966 is the coming bookkeeping year.

When the Redeye, a shoulder-fired guided missile for defense against lowflying planes, enters the Marine arsenal "we're going to require additional people," the four-star Marine general said. This is some time in the future.

Green said there are three ways the increased manpower demands can be met: (1) adding to the corps' overall strength, (2) deactivating some units and shifting the men to other assignments or (3) reducing the manning levels of combat units.

Proves FAA Has a Big Heart

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP)—A 10-year-old girl proved Thursday that the Federal Aviation Agency, which is conducting a series of supersonic airplane boom tests here, has a heart.

Laurie Werthessen of Edmond wrote a letter to the "sonic boom office" complaining that while she was fixing her curtains a faster-than-sound plane flew over, causing the rod to fall. The rod hit her arm and broke her Chinese charm bracelet.

"And they cost $1.50," she said. "So I will be waiting for my money."

Douglas Doyle, acting operations manager of the sonic boom study, said his staff didn't think the booms were really responsible, but something should be done. The staff cut red tape and collected $1.50 for Laurie, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Nicholas Werthessen.

Burrow Promises to Up Standards

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP)—R. D. Burrow, Democratic candidate for governor, said in a television speech here Thursday night he would raise Arkansas' educational standards by increasing teacher pay.

Burrow also promised to increase welfare payments by 50 per cent, build farm to market roads and try to provide bonuses to war veterans.

He charged that Gov. Orval E. Faubus and his administration are trying to sell voters the idea that Arkansas has a high level of welfare payments which actually many states pay more.

Hubbard, of Walnut Ridge, said much of the increase in welfare payments in Arkansas has come because the federal government has given money to the program.

Many Fear for Church of England

LONDON (AP)—Is the Church of England becoming too Roman Catholic?

Backers of the old Protestant tradition, which emphasizes preaching above ritual, have been saying so for more than a century. Now, with all the talk about a worldwide ecumenical movement for bringing the churches together, they claim new cause for alarm.

Men still representing the old Puritan tradition in the Church of England are suspicious of these increasing contacts. They deplore what they call the Anglican drift toward Rome and are rallying their members of Parliament for a last-ditch fight in the House of Commons against two bills to change Church of England practices.

One measure would legalize the use of Mass vestments at the Eucharist service. For many years, some Anglican priests have worn vestments, while others wear only white surplice and stole.

The second measure would permit stone altars, instead of wood, the use of unleavened bread—wafers—at Holy Communion, and increased use of Latin on certain occasions.

Opponents say this represents "a definite drift toward the Roman Catholic form of service." The Church Assembly, which has approved the changes has attempted to allay opposition with a pamphlet titled, "No Drift to Rome." Only parliamentary approval of the measures is necessary, because the Church of England is the state-established church. It embraces about 27 million members.

The church's position is that modern architectural usage often dictates the use of stone altars, wafers are more convenient to handle than ordinary bread, and there is no reason to restrict the use of Latin. It is now allowed for public use only at Oxford and Cambridge and the three royal public-private schools—Westminster, Winchester and Eton.

In Britain, only the queen is constitutionally barred from converting to Roman Catholicism. It would cost her the throne.

Roman Catholics claim more than five million members in Britain and Northern Ireland, compared with less than four million in 1950.

'Arkansaw' Territory Formed 145 Years Ago, Hempstead Was Organized Back in 1818

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

It was on the 4th of July, 1819—145 years ago—that Arkansas began its separate existence under the name "Arkansaw Territory," according to "The History of Arkansas" by Josiah H. Shinn. Though Arkansas celebrated its birth as a state on June 15, it did not attain statehood until 1836 or 19 years after its first organized existence began.

The Shinn history book, owned by B. W. Edwards, did not bear a copyright date, but from certain charts and other information herein it must have been printed in 1905 or 1906. In the list of counties in the state and their dates of origin, we found the first one, Arkansas County, began on December 3, 1813. Lawrence County was second on January 5, 1815. Three counties, Clark, Hempstead, and Pulaski, had the distinction of being organized third and on the same day, December 5, 1818.

There are a lot of lovely spots in Arkansas, but did you know there was a Lovely County formed in October 13 1827? It was the same as the date for St. Francis County, but Lovely County lasted only a year before it was abolished. Nearby Miller County, named for the first Arkansas Governor, had a coming and going fit with life. Organized April 1, 1820, it was abolished in 1836, and then re-established in 1874.

When Arkansas Territory was formed, the seat of government was Arkansas Post on the Arkansas River. President James Monroe appointed General James Miller of New Hampshire as Governor and Robert Crittenden, of Frankfort, Ky., as Secretary. Since the Governor didn't arrive until late in the year, the government's organization fell on Crittenden's 22-year-old shoulders.

When Governor Miller finally arrived at Arkansas Post (he later resigned to accept another position), he was December 26, 1819. He came on a keel boat fitted up for his use by the government and and "Arkansaw" painted on both sides. It flew a national flag in the center or which was the word, "Arkansaw" surrounded by the words, "I'll try, sir."

The first Protestant mission in Arkansas was organized in 1820, at old Dwight, above Russellville, by Cephas Washburn, a Congregational minister, under the direction of the American Board of Foreign Missions. On July 4, 1820 when he passed through Little Rock, he decided to hold a meeting there. His congregation was 14 men and no women. Later, he established a boarding school at Dwight, the first organized educational enterprise in the state. His students were 100 Cherokee boys and girls; white children were admitted later on.

Political parties in Arkansas during the early 1830's were called the "Sevier" and the "Crittenden" parties. Sevier was a strong Jackson man and had the largest influence of any man in the state. The Governor appointed by President Jackson was John Pope, who was probably favored by Sevier. Pope had pride in this territory and he is quoted as saying:

Singing Sunday At Local Church

A special singing convention will be held in the newly air-conditioned auditorium at First Assembly of God Church, 322 North Main St., on Sunday, July 12, at 1:30 p. m., according to Jesse L. Brown. Among the special groups to appear on the program will be the well-known Lee-White quartet.

Johnson Frets About Floodlights

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson, like most politicians enjoys being in the spotlight. But he sometimes frets about floodlights.

Of course, spotlights and floodlights often go together and you can't have one without the other. Johnson discovered this Thursday.

Because the President dislikes the big, hot flood lamps used by television cameramen, he lost some of the spotlight when he signed the $375 million mass transit law.

The signing ceremony was the sort Presidents like to publicize—especially with four governors, three big city mayors and 24 congressional leaders on hand.

But when Johnson signed the transit act not a single news photographer was present. And there was no television or newsroom coverage when he said the new law is "one of the most profoundly significant domestic measures" of the decade.

Here is how the much publicized chief executive missed some sure-fire publicity:

On Wednesday, Johnson was discomfited, and made no bones about it, by photo floodlights set up in the East Room when he and Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy greeted federal prosecutors from all parts of the country. Aides vowed they would try to avoid recurrences.

This was no sudden presidential quirk, either. On other occasions he displayed similar aversion—which many others share—to long exposure under hot, bright lights.

Mindful of this, Johnson aides decided to keep photographers out of the bill-signing ceremony except for the opening minutes when he made his entrance.

How the GOP Hopefuls Stand on Key Issues

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Following is a summary of views expressed by Gov. William W. Scranton and Sen. Barry Goldwater on issues both discussed during their appearances before the Republican Platform Committee in San Francisco.

Extremists
Scranton: "There is the matter of extremist groups and their relationship to the Republican party. The radical extremist groups are alien to our shores. Our platform should say so. Frankly I cannot for one second conceive why you would hesitate to specifically name the John Birch Society as a prime example of this weird presence in America."

Goldwater: "When we speak of peace today, and the threats to it, we must speak of communism. I was surprised, and am concerned, that during these platform hearings, mention even of the word 'communism' has been the exception rather than the rule. Even in the keynote addresses it has seemed that the discussion of the grim and hard facts of communism has been taboo."

Civil Rights
Scranton: "With great statesmanship Republican legislators overwhelmingly voted the civil rights bill into law. This law, primarily a Republican accomplishment, should be cited as another step towards America's promise to the world implicit in our Constitution, of equal rights and opportunities for all."

"And we should not stop with the 1964 act—good as it is. We should pledge ourselves to act to remove the many frustrations that remain to deprive minorities in the fields of education, employment and housing."

Goldwater: "Our Constitution has also laid the foundation for a just society. We are all entitled to equal opportunities to exercise our talents and fulfill our ambitions so long as we do not infringe the rights of others. No person, whether government official or private citizen, should violate the rights of some in order to further the rights of others."

"I will uphold the 1964 rights law, which Goldwater voted against as senator; because it is the voice of the majority. If I am your president, I will do something about this in more ways than this law because I don't think this is a problem that is ever going to be completely solved by law. It's going to be solved by heart."

Nuclear Weapon Control
Scranton: "It is the essence of foolhardy radicalism in our time to take any step that would increase the likelihood of nuclear war. The Republican party must indicate that it recognizes the enormous responsibility that control of these weapons entails, and place itself firmly on record in favor of retaining control of nuclear weapons in the sole hands of the president of the United States."

Goldwater: He said the law clearly gives the president sole decision power in using nuclear arms and "I can't change the law." He added he would want no one but the president to have authority to order intercontinental—and intermediate—range atomic weapons into action.

But he said military men were concerned about the possibility of an attack on bases with small nuclear weapons and about the delay in fighting back with similar weapons, which he said have replaced some conventional arms. He emphasized that he was talking only about the NATO area and its commander, an American general.

Social Security
Scranton: "If you make Social Security voluntary you will destroy (its) fiscal soundness. I urge that the Republican platform positively advocate improvement of the system by bringing more widows under coverage and extending child benefits to the age of 21 if such children are attending school or college."

Goldwater: He said he would accept a plank for strengthened Social Security and "I voted for all the Eisenhower improvements and against all crippling amendments."

Taxes
Scranton: "We must revise federal tax policies to make more revenue available at the

Mindreader Needed on Convention

by JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Needed: one mindreader in these last few days before the Republican convention in San Francisco.

He would come in mighty handy if he could give his version of why some of the things that are happening are happening.

Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, trying to keep Sen. Barry Goldwater from getting the Republican presidential nomination, went to Illinois for a two-day campaign. He went around shaking hands with commuters.

Henry Cabot Lodge, who quit as U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam to come home and help Scranton, went out to Kansas to make a pitch but only six convention delegates showed up. They spent some of their time talking foreign affairs.

Here in Washington, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith still thinks she has a chance for the nomination, she says. She denies she's really hoping for the vice presidential nomination.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower is still refusing to say anything about his preference for a candidate.

Goldwater, who seems to have the nomination locked up, sounds very self-assured. In Washington Monday he said he was shopping around in his mind for the vice presidential runningmate.

He said he has two names on his list of prospects—Reps. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan and William E. Miller of New York—but denied stories he favors Miller. "I don't know how that got started," he said.

Meanwhile, the hopeful Miller was saying he would accept if asked but he hasn't been asked. In Illinois last week 40 of the state's 58 convention delegates lined up with Goldwater after listening to appeals from him and Scranton. The other 10 did not commit themselves.

For a reason which did not seem clear even when he explained it, Scranton went back there this week looking for delegates. He started off shaking hands with commuters and getting washed out by a thunderstorm at a shopping center rally.

Scranton said he went back to Illinois to arouse Republicans in general to get them to tell their delegates to switch to him.

Seven of Kansas' 20 delegates are on Goldwater's side, only one on Scranton's, and some of the 20 already have left for the convention. Nevertheless, Lodge saying "my duty is to present my views," went out to Kansas.

Scranton did announce Monday that Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, the general's brother, would nominate him at the convention. He hinted broadly he had the unannounced support of the former president with whom he had talked.

Lodge had talked with Eisenhower last week and managed to convey the impression he had found a package of goodies in Gettysburg.

But one of the general's aides said Monday there would be no comment at this time on any preference for the nomination.

Woman Protects Self, Arrested

NEW YORK (AP)—Arlene Del Fava says she will use a police whistle to attract men. She bought a whistle Thursday to summon help if a mugger attacks her, as one did last Sunday. She stabbed the man with a switchblade knife and was charged with violating anti-weapons laws.

Police said she'd have been in the clear if she'd used an ordinary knife or a hat pin. Switchblades are outlawed.

Business Is Riding a Profit Wave

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—American business is riding a profit wave as spectacular as any challenged by the surfboard set.

A flood of earnings reports for the second quarter is starting. Early tallies and estimates reveal only a small minority of companies that aren't doing better than a year ago. Many are reporting new highs for the quarter. Some are setting records for any three-month period in their history.

The good news is encouraging the bulls in the stock market. Also gladdened are the hearts of shareholders who hope for further increases in dividends.

The U.S. Treasury will be a big winner, too. Even at the lowered tax rates on corporate incomes, the record gross earnings will mean a flow of tax receipts. The bigger-than-expected jump in profits in the first three months of the year is being extended through the latest period.

Earliest reports are from corporations with fiscal years ending ahead of the calendar year, so that their second quarter books were closed before June 30. But the nation's banks are reporting for the April-May-June quarter and most of them show gains over last year. Officials of many of the large corporations yet to report formally also are on record as estimating that the gain over last year will be substantial.

Among the big companies already reporting increased earnings are American Telephone & Telegraph, Firestone Tire & Rubber and Douglas Aircraft. Preliminary estimates also put Du Pont and Parke, Davis & Co. in this group. Most steel companies are expected to join the list by the end of the month. The big motor companies are considered sure members of the club.

Retail chains reporting so far are almost all in the plus column. Included are J. C. Penney, R. H. Macy, Federated Department Stores, Bullock's, Marshall Field, May Department Stores, Associated Dry Goods, Allied Stores, Russells, and Lane Bryant.

Executives of a number of the nation's largest corporations are on record as predicting that the rate of the profit increases may slow a bit in coming months but that the figures will stay well above those of a year ago.

They, like many stock traders already have put 1964 down in the books as the most profitable, in terms of dollar totals, in American business history.

Television and Radio

Editor's Note—After 20 years as one of the nation's most popular broadcasters, Mary Margaret McBride eight years ago retired to her mountain home. It has turned out to be a busy, active retirement: she has written two books, articles and for several years as a hobby has done a three-times-a-week radio program from her living room. Here she tells how television has become an important part of her life.

By Mary Margaret McBride (For Cynthia Lowry)
WEST SHOKAN, N.Y. (AP)—I like television, in fact, more than liking television, has me hooked.

My alibi is that I live alone and guests come and go. It would often be lonely without old friend and new who drop in on me from the air.

A while back, a magazine polled a few intellectual sand, for some reason, me. How many hours a week do you spend looking at television, the questionnaire asked. I con-

Speculation on Nikita's Successor

Editor's note—One of the biggest political questions in the world today is who is going to succeed Khrushchev and when. From his vantage point of five years as Associated Press bureau chief in Moscow, Preston Grover discusses this intriguing question in the last of four articles on Soviet life.

Soviet Life IV

By PRESTON GROVER
MOSCOW (AP)—Who is going to succeed Premier Khrushchev, and when?

This is fascinating question No. 1 in the Soviet Union. It fascinates foreign diplomats, of course.

It fascinates 10 times more, even 100 times more, some 220 million people in the Soviet Union.

It is of very special interest also to the leaders of some 700 million Chinese.

But the greatest interest of all is bound to be shared by a tight cluster of men Khrushchev has gathered around him. For, as of right now—the choice of the next leader of the Soviet Union almost certainly would be made by that group of five, and almost certainly one of the five would be chosen.

Foremost among the five are President Leonid Brezhnev, 57, whose star continues slowly rising, and Nikolai Podgorny, 60, a man who grew up in the food industries.

Other members of that corporation include the old Bolshevik, First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan, 69, party theoretician Michael Suslov, 62, and Alexei Kosygin, 60, first deputy chairman, along with Mikoyan. Kosygin is an industrial and economic specialist.

Although they have senior titles, Mikoyan and Kosygin, are not likely to get the job with the power. Mikoyan has become a perennial No. 2 man, welcome in any group because of his great party and governmental wisdom, and the fact that he seems to have no desire to advance beyond No. 2. Kosygin is a business executive, without special party background.

Frol Kozlov, 56, used to be considered in that group as well, right at the top under Khrushchev. But in the past two years he has suffered two heart attacks and a stroke. His name still is included among members of the Presidium, but Kozlov, whom Khrushchev once designated as his successor, evidently is out.

The man likely to succeed Khrushchev is Brezhnev, if the change comes now. He is technically chairman of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, or Parliament. By Soviet practice, that makes him president, or chief of state. Moreover, some months back he got an important job in the party secretariat. That was a big step toward leadership.

Khrushchev, now 70, still is very much the man at the top, and though a couple of years back he told a Young Communist League gathering that he couldn't expect to go on forever, nobody expects him to drop out voluntarily. He still seems to have as much vigor as any of the "inner circle" in the Presidium.

Barring accidents or heart attacks or strokes, Khrushchev could go on for several years. Some observers abroad believe there is a palace clique ready to chuck him out for as spectacular a series of failures as a chief of state could expect.

When the magazine came out, I found I had an entire paragraph to myself. "Finally," the compiler summed up, "the most faithful viewer is, of all people, Mary Margaret McBride."

The intellectuals mostly said they rarely turn on their sets, leaving them to the children and servants. Some boasted that they didn't even own televisions. This put me properly in my place among the lowest of lowbrows, and since I am always hoping to better myself, I earnestly tried to give up my vice.

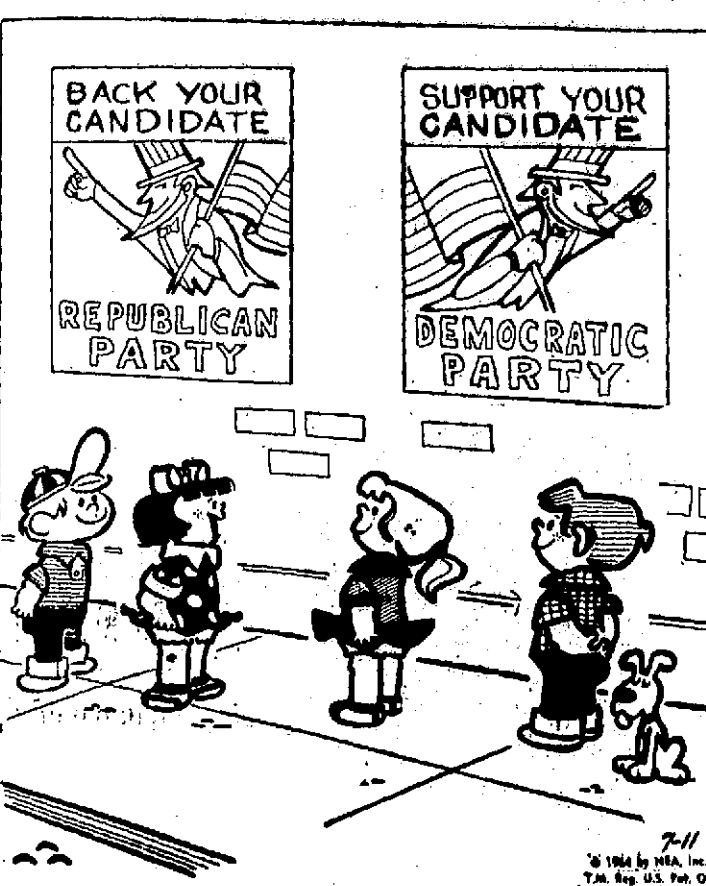

By the end of the second week, I was back in my armchair. I hadn't missed much for I was even farther ahead on plot than I was on dialogue.

Perry Mason was still calmly winning cases with no indication, judging from his unruffled brow, that he had heard a rumor about being bound to lose some time. Danny Kaye was going on his fascinating puckish way. Helen Hayes and Julie Harris, my two favorite actresses, were there to bring me back part of my lost Broadway.

My favorite show of all, "The Defenders," is often more than a preachment. I like preachments, especially, when they are beautifully written, perfectly directed and acted. And most especially when they agree with what my Baptist preacher grandfather taught me.

"DEAR ABBY"

REPORT HIM!

By Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: My mother became ill, so I called the doctor. He examined her and said coldly, "She's sick." (I knew that or I wouldn't have called him.) He prescribed some medicine and told her to keep in bed. After two weeks in bed he just grew weaker and she wasn't eating enough to keep a bird alive. I called the doctor again and told him my mother seemed to be slipping. He said, "There is nothing I can do. What do you expect from a 73-year-old woman?" Two days later she was just lying there like a wax statue and I honestly didn't know if she had gone into a coma or if the life and gone out of her, so I called the doctor and asked him to come right over. He calmly said, "If she is gone, you don't need ME. Call the undertaker of your choice and have him contact me to sign the death certificate." After all, Abby, I am NOT a registered nurse so how am I supposed to know if my mother is dead or in a coma? She died the next morning. I thought doctors were supposed to be dedicated? If I want to report this, to the American Medical Association, how do I go about it? We live in a very small town.

DISAPPOINTED IN DRS. Dear Disappointed: Write to the State Board of Medical Examiners, care of your State capital. They will investigate the case and the doctor will have to answer for his unprofessional and inhumane conduct.

Dear Abby: Will you join a campaign to legalize polygamy? Particularly for men who have career wives? I speak from experience. In spite of her beautiful home, a car of her own, no money worries and three wonderful children, my wife decided that being a homemaker was not creative enough for her, so she took a job. And now when this "creative" being comes home, she is tired, irritable, and has no creative energy for her home, children or husband. What do you say?

FRUSTRATED

Dear Frustrated: A mother with school-age children who seeks a career outside her home for any reason other than because she just plain NEEDS THE MONEY, deserves a good boot in the bustle. And a husband who would let her get away with it deserves two.

Dear Abby: My father was a taxidermist and as a boy I learned the trade from him. I use it only as a hobby, however, as I am in the insurance business. The young woman I am presently going with is a devout lover of animals and she can't stand to be around stuffed animals or birds. My apartment is filled with beautiful stuffed owls, pheasants and the heads of deer or elk. She says it gives her the creeps. I like this girl a lot, Abby, and don't want to give her up. But I find taxidermy a most relaxing hobby. Any suggestions?

AVOCATION: TAXIDERMY Dear Av: Yes, forget the girl. If she really cared for you she'd abide the glass-eyed creatures. And if you really cared for her, you wouldn't be asking me for

Airman With a Pistol Released

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—An airman was questioned by police and released here Thursday because he had a pistol in his baggage on a Central Airlines flight from Kansas City, Mo.

Police Chief R.E. Brians said airlines personnel notified police that a passenger had a weapon with him on the flight.

After police questioned passengers, the airman, the stewardess and pilot of the plane, they pieced together this story: During the flight the airman and the stewardess were talking and he airman opened a suitcase. The stewardess saw a .45 caliber automatic pistol in the case, said, "I'll take that," and held the bag for the rest of the flight.

The pilot radioed ahead to the Little Rock airport, asking instructions, and police were notified.

The airman made no attempt to regain possession of the suitcase. The pistol was not loaded. "There was a mixup in messages, I guess," Brians said. "Somebody just got excited."

No charges were filed.

Newsboy Injured in Accident

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP)—A 14-year-old Arkansas Gazette newspaper delivery boy was critically injured early today when his motorbike collided with a refrigerated truck here.

Jens Allen Ratliff, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Ratliff of Jonesboro, was taken to Baptist Hospital in Memphis.

He was delivering newspapers at the time of the accident.

Police Sgt. Glen Bradley identified the truck driver as R. W. Morgan, 42, of Jonesboro.

Bradley said the youth was thrown onto the hood of the truck and then thrown clear.

Young Ratliff also delivered the Memphis Press-Scimitar in the afternoon.

Ask Flat Gets $78,000 Loan

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Farmers Home Administration announced Thursday approval of a $78,000 loan to help Ask Flat construct a water system that will cost about $97,500.

The Housing and Home Finance Agency will grant Ask Flat $40,500 to cover the rest of the cost, said FHA Director H. h. hankins.

suggestions. You'd store your zoo in the attic and marry the girl.

Dear Abby: What would you think, if, after you received an invitation to the wedding of your friend's 18-year-old daughter, her mother called and said, "If you are going to send our daughter a wedding gift, please don't give her anything with a monogram or an initial because you know how young folks are nowadays—you never know how long the marriage will last."

ABSOLUTELY SPEECHLESS Dear Absolutely: I would think the same thoughts you undoubtedly thought. And I would heed the advice. P.S. Let's hope the daughter has better sense than her mother.

OF THE ESSENCE

By JOHN HOWARD

My antiquated roadster lumbered noisily up the lane and into the farmyard, coughing its own special perfume of burned gasoline and benzol into the evening atmosphere, to blend with unforgettable smells of hay, of slumbering cows, of bright tin milk pails reflecting the moonlight.

As I flicked off the ignition, pure silence returned. A silence in which to hear my own sigh of gladness to see Esther waiting by the kitchen door, and wearing her warming smile of welcome. I trotted briskly toward the step, squeezed Esther's hand, and gave her shoulders a gentle hug.

Her mother forbade warmer show of affection in our courtship, and Esther was as loyal to her mother's wish as she promised she would someday be to mine.

Inside the kitchen itself, I told Mother of our plans. Tonight's briefing had to be a little white lie. For Esther and I were headed into town to pick up some things with which to fete her mother's birthday. Mom promised us a freshly baked pie for our quick return.

Joining Esther in the narrow seat of the roadster, I paused to observe Esther's simple charm and quiet beauty. The farm was small and poor. Esther's face said so, deeply tanned and softly weathered from long hours in the hot fields. In a playful tussle, the sinew of her muscles would be sensed, a clear reminder of many a burdening chore. And the same hot sun that put the glow in her complexion also put touches of amber in her hair.

As I coaxed faltering life back into the engine, Esther busied herself with a tiny vial of perfume, stroking its fragrance on to one of those amber wisps that framed her profile in the dark of evening.

Then before I realized it, Esther had dipped the little glass rod into the vial and passed it ever so quickly across the lapel of my jacket. This accomplishment sent Esther into her corner of the seat in a wave of silent laughter.

I was pleased at the deeper significance of the gesture and had difficulty pretending more than a superficial show of objection.

It had to be a cheap perfume, I reasoned. The farm was so poor, and I had never thought of perfume as a gift. But its fragrance was magic, pouring still another essence onto the still of the night, and certain to remain in my memory longer than it stayed on the lapel of my jacket, which was a good long time.

Back from the trip to town, the old roadster made its final turn into the lane, and its noises broke the still of the farmyard for the last time. Exact details are almost impossible to recall so many years later. Of this I am quite sure. . . there was no fresh baked pie, no squeeze or hug to signify the usual well-ordered farewell.

There must have been misunderstanding with tragic consequence. Maybe something about the perfume. In retrospect, a quarrel was unthinkable. For my Esther was a mute. She would listen intently, then acknowledge with her own quiet forms of communication. . . a nod or twist of her head. Sometimes a frown, more often a smile. Or little pranks, like the glass rod with the perfume on

Ohio Votes Turned Loose by Governor

By RICHARD L. GRAVES

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton failed Thursday night to persuade Gov. James A. Rhodes to keep the 58-vote Ohio delegation lined up behind Rhodes and away from Sen. Barry Goldwater on the first ballot for the Republican presidential nomination.

Scranton and Rhodes met for an hour and 40 minutes in the Pennsylvania governor's hotel suite. Scranton wasn't immediately accessible for comment on the meeting.

Rhodes termed the session "just a pleasant visit." He said nothing specific was brought up. "But he said he would not reverse a position he took earlier Thursday that would recommend that the Ohio delegates 'vote for the candidate of their choice.'"

The delegation has been committed to Rhodes as a favorite son. Estimates of Goldwater strength in the Ohio delegation indicate the Arizona senator has about 40 votes.

Scranton attacked Goldwater Thursday for statements attributed to the senator in the German news magazine "Der Spiegel." The governor said the statements have become "a matter of grave national concern."

He called on Goldwater to present a transcript of his interview with the German magazine's reporter to the Republican platform committee today. "The reckless comments of the senator from Arizona in the area of war and peace have become a matter of grave national concern," Scranton said at a news conference.

Scranton specifically criticized a statement in the magazine transcript of the Goldwater interview that quoted the senator as saying he would turn the decision for extending the war in South Viet Nam over to his chiefs of staff.

Goldwater's response was that he stands by his statements, he doesn't have a copy of the interview, and that Scranton is free to buy a copy of the magazine and read the article to the platform committee if its members want to listen.

Some sort of misunderstanding must have occurred. Undoubtedly it arose from lack of communications. Even people who are not mute occasionally have quarrels from misunderstanding.

I might never have thought of it all again. But tonight I was walking alone in the city. I paused in a doorway while deciding whether to return home or stop at The Chalet for dinner. A stunning woman passed, walking briskly, quietly, alone. There was no reason to notice if the wisp of hair that framed her profile in the night was black or gold, or maybe amber. It seemed long after she had passed that a cloud of fragrance enveloped me, as though aimed at me alone. It held magic power. It made me want to turn back, way back, and continue until I reached the old lane to the farmyard.

Then the fragrance disappeared. But its essence lingered. It was the essence of a sweet love, the essence of a sad loss. And the essence of a just remembering.

Another Dies From Tetanus

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Health Department announced Wednesday the third death caused by tetanus in Arkansas this year.

Dr. William L. Bunch Jr., director of the Division of Communicable Disease Control, said the latest victim was a 15-year-old Negro girl who died in May in Arkansas County.

A Negro boy who cut his foot on a piece of glass in Arkansas County is ill with tetanus, Bunch said.

A Faulkner County woman who became ill with tetanus survived, he said.

The two previous tetanus-caused deaths in the state this year took the lives of a 3-year-old Pointsett County girl and a 64-year-old Mississippi County man.

Greg Spahn is a promising sophomore halfback at Haileyville, Okla., High School. His father Warren pitches for the Milwaukee Braves.

"some good news" soon in regard to the government's financial position.
Johnson obviously believes there are political dividends in trimming the budget deficit and he has emphasized economy repeatedly to his lieutenants. They apparently have been working hard to cut below the goal set by the President.
One measure of these efforts is the number of government employees. At one time the number was expected to reach 2,571,000 at the end of the fiscal year. The administration announced that its goal is to cut this figure to 2,497,000, and it now seems certain that the actual count will be still lower.

was happening.
The second attacking column was led by Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., a candidate for re-election who doesn't want to run on a ticket headed by Goldwater. Scott laid the groundwork for a direct appeal to next week's convention not to accept a platform with the civil rights and other planks satisfactory to Goldwater. But the Scranton people lost every plank battle in the platform committee.
Somewhat bitterly, Scranton contended that the major planks of the platform had been "written for some time" to suit Goldwater and weren't going to be changed unless the convention took over and redrafted them.
The confident Goldwater people conceded privately Scranton's was a relatively true statement. But they said there wasn't anything he could do about it.
Sen. John G. Tower of Texas, a Goldwater backer, said he is confident the platform now in the final drafting stages will be "extremely acceptable" to Goldwater.
The Arizona senator perhaps previewed his general election campaign intentions when he called on the Republicans to "lead the crusade against tyranny."

How the GOP

state and local levels.
Goldwater: "A Republican administration will construct a fair and equitable tax code, and will return to each state fruitful sources of revenue and even a significant portion of the taxes collected from its people eat the national level."
Foreign Affairs
Scranton: "We wish, above all, to preserve the peace of the world and we recognize the role of the United Nations. We would strengthen the United Nations by insisting that nations that do not pay their dues and assessments be deprived of their voting rights and by re-examining the relationship between the General Assembly and the Security Council."
"It is essential that the Republican party pledge itself to continue foreign aid. This program should be directed toward the encouragement of local free enterprises rather than to the propping up of petty elites."
Goldwater: "The Republicans know that strength and the resolute will to use that strength are the surest deterrents to aggression and the surest way to avoid war. Our leadership must bind up the torn and tattered alliances. The NATO community is the first line of defense for the entire free world, but the present administration has allowed NATO to drift into disarray."

Subject to Law

Surely the eagle best represents the ideal of Liberty. But the picture shows him to be under restriction. He has duties to perform, young to rear and a home to protect. Perhaps freedom is linked with responsibility.

From Alaska to the Gulf he ranges in freedom as monarch of the sky.

Yet, how subject is he to the natural laws of God. You never see birds very high in the sky. Most birds do not risk much of height above the tree tops. When exhausted they need a branch on which to perch. They fly awhile and then earth calls them down. How clearly the eagle speaks to us Americans. We are so free, yet so subject to God, so responsible to Him and ours. May we limit our own freedom, support His church and realize how subject we are to God.
